

Currently I understand that this proposal would lessen the current restrictions on telephone solicitations that Indiana has currently enacted with their "no call" lists. I do not want that to happen. Before I was on Indiana's no call list my friends and family could not leave me a voice mail message on my answering machine because it was filled to capacity on a daily basis by unsolicited calls from telemarketers. A day would not go by without one to two calls each evening with these same unsolicited calls. I do not want that to take place again. I enjoy knowing that when I answer my phone it is actually someone I want to talk to, not someone who I have to argue with to get them off the phone and eventually just hang up on them due to their persistence with completing the sale for unwanted items. Currently, I would love it if Indiana could do the same thing for my email address that they have done for my phone!
